

HSRAANZ Webinar – Balancing a Health Services Research Career with Family Life

Presented by Professor Julie Ratcliffe
11 October 2018 @ 2:30 – 3:30pm AEST

Julie is Professor of Health Economics in the Institute for Choice, School of Business, University of South Australia. She also holds Honorary Professorial positions in the Institute of Health and Wellbeing at the University of Glasgow and the School of Health and Related Research at the University of Sheffield. From 2010-2016 she was Professor of Health Economics in the School of Medicine at Flinders University. She has also held academic positions in the UK at the University of Aberdeen, Brunel University and the University of Sheffield.

During the course of her career, Julie has published over 190 papers in peer reviewed journals including some of the most prestigious international health journals such as the journal of the American Medical Association, British Medical Journal, Health Economics, and Social Science and Medicine. She has been a chief investigator on over 40 multi-disciplinary research grants including grants awarded by the NHMRC and ARC in Australia and the MRC and ESRC in the UK. Her research interests include the measurement and valuation of health and quality of life outcomes, patient preferences and the economic evaluation of interventions across health and social care sectors.

Julie is also a wife, a mother to three children, a daughter and a friend. She has offered to share her hard won insights into achieving a successful career and having a life that works – most of the time!
